After Mrs. Kaber has faced the others to-day the names of the prisoners will be revealed for the first The police here have made much mystery of their arrests, but it is known that there were eight persons concerned in the murder, including the three generations-Mrs. Mary Brickel, her daughter Mrs. Kaber, and Miss McArdle.

So far as known, the only person now sought is the man who aided the actual slayer. An automobile said to have been given to the fugitive for his part in the crime has been seized by the police

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER WIT NESSES AGAINST MRS. KABER.

The strongest witnesses against Mrs. Kaber may be her mother and daughter. Her mother, who s sixty-nine. swears in her confession that Mrs. Kaber said to her: "I am going to have Dan killed." Miss McArdle, while discaiming knowledge of what was to occur, admitted to the New York police that she understood her mother was to pay $3,000 to the two men for whatever they were to do

Mrs. Kaber had told the New York police that she was to pay them, but said it was $100. Mother and daughter were questioned separately, and the widow's statement was contradicted in several important points by Miss McArdle. When all sought are rounded up there will be five women and three the latter, who furnished the poison The men are the two men who did the actual stabbing and a man who helped procure their services. Several others who figure in the authorities regard the case as prett, fessions, which came after eighteen hours' relentless questioning by Capt. Carey of the New York Homic de Squad and Chief of Police Christensen of Lakewood.
